

INTERNATIONAL FOUNDATION FOR PROTECTION OFFICERS
KNOWLEDGE TO PROTECT

Train the Online Trainer

As organizations transition from classroom to online instruction, finding qualified ONLINE instructors can be one of the greatest challenges organizations face.

- ➔ Instructors must know the fundamental differences between physical & digital instruction.
- ➔ Engaging students requires enhanced skills beyond those used in the physical classroom.
- ➔ Challenges include both accessing and using technology as well as recognizing both instructor and learner engagement differences.

This advanced train the online trainer course will discuss the tactics required to successfully transition to the online learning environment.

Concepts:

- Connecting through technology
- Learning management platforms
- Instructor engagement
- Student engagement
- Designing Instruction Plans

Training material: Includes a detailed participant manual.

Format:

- Two Online Sessions.
- Each session is two hours.
- Utilize Microsoft Teams and discuss other online learning platforms.
- Two in-class assignments and two field-work assignments to be submitted within 10 days of the end of session 2.

Instructor: Dr. Glen Kitteringham, CPP was awarded his Professional Doctorate in Security Risk Management from the University of Portsmouth and is an ASIS International Certified Protection Professional. He has earned certificates in Adult Learning, specializing in Adult and Community Education, e-Learning and Workplace Learning from the University of Calgary. He teaches several online courses at the University of Calgary and the Justice Institute of British Columbia. Dr. Kitteringham has worked in the security industry since 1990.

Cost: $149.00 (USD) per student.

IFPO Certificate of completion: Issued to all participants who successfully complete this program.