Contribute to Ground-Breaking Research

As world events continue to change, the IFPO is commissioning Perpetuity Research to conduct study to more clearly define the roles, responsibilities, and duties and task complexity of the Security Officer. This important research will focus on:

Better understanding of the role and complexity of the security officer in our evolving culture in the 21st century.

Development of current relevant educational opportunities to better address the outcome of the research.

It is vital for the security industry to identify its area of responsibility. With the growth of private military companies, there is a real danger of these organizations being conflated with the private security industry. We need to identify security officer roles and responsibilities. This research will aid us in doing so and through your donation you will be contributing to this important task. As a sponsor, you will receive the following:

- Regular media and social media features and recognition in both Security Magazine and IFPO Insights. Development of current relevant educational opportunities to better address the outcome of the research.
- Organization prominently listed as a sponsor in completed document.
- Updates and advanced complimentary copies of the research.
- Funds raised by sales of research will be donated to families of fallen officers.

Our GOAL is to raise $75,000 for this groundbreaking research project but we need your help! To kickstart this program, the IFPO has committed the initial $15,000!
